

Mansion House Surgery Non NHS fees and charges

The Governments Contract with GP's covers medical services to NHS patients however in recent years more and more organisations have been involving doctors in a wide range of non NHS work. Sometimes the only reason that GP's are asked is because they are in a position of trust in the community or because an insurance company, employer or public body wants to ensure that the information provided to them is true and accurate.

The fees are set to reflect the level of work and time involved. This may seem excessive when all that may have been requested is a GP's signature. When a GP signs a certificate or completes a report or writes a letter it is a condition of remaining on the Medical Register (which allows them to practice as a doctor) that they only sign what they know to be true. In order to complete even the simplest of forms the doctor may have to check a patient's entire medical record. Carelessness or inaccuracy can have serious consequences for the doctor with the General Medical Council (the doctor's regulatory body) or even the police.
